Historic Occoquan, Virginia

Historic Occoquan has been a town of independent merchants for over 250 years. As you walk west on Mill Street try to imagine what Occoquan was like in the 1700's. THE NOISE IS THUNDEROUS! From the riverside ahead you hear the roar of the mills (three water wheels and six sets of millstones going at the same time) and the swift flowing water that powers the mills. Smoke rises from the iron foundry upstream. Waggoners call to their teams trying to control them down the steep and craggy roads and huge ships are loading cargo. Occoquan has enjoyed a very long history, from the Dogue Indians to Revolutionaries and Red Coats, Confederates and Yankees, and despite floods and fires, this vibrant town has survived.

Occoquan is derived from a Dogue Indian word meaning "at the end of the water". It was this river and its location which made Occoquan a natural site for water-borne commerce. A tobacco warehouse was built as early as 1736 and an industrial complex began in 1750. Before the turn of the century, Occoquan had forges, water grist mills, tolling mills, a bake house, saw mills, storehouses and dwellings. By the end of the 18th century, the Merchant's Mill earned the distinction of being the first automated grist mill in the country. By 1828, Occoquan had one of the first cotton mills in Virginia. Occoquan still remains a town of independent merchants offering unhurried shopping and pleasant dining.
